OCTOBER 2026

WE STEP FOR THEM

It is very possible that while our feet are pounding the track at the Run for Freedom, somewhere out there little feet are running too. They may be running to get away from someone they trusted, someone that they thought would love and protect them, or from the impossible circumstances that have sprouted to the surface, nipping relentlessly at their heels as they tread.

However, what is even more likely is that while we are running and walking, there are feet that remain silent & still with shoes planted firmly on the ground because they don't know where to go. They are the estranged feet of those that feel like they couldn't escape even if they tried. They remain stuck in a purgatory of pain with the weight of their world sticking to the bottom of their soles.

We run and walk for them. We choose to go with them, behind them, and in front of them to lead the way. We walk alongside them as they navigate the perilous, uncertain journey toward finding their way home. It can feel dark and dingy like the kind of dirt beneath your fingernails that no amount of scrubbing seems to remove. A layer of muck that has settled in so deeply it begins to feel like a second skin—something many of our survivors are groomed to believe is how they came into the world.

But it is important that we don't look away. She could be your neighbor or sitting next to your daughter at school. She could be the single mom you pass in the grocery store. She could be closer to you than you realize.

This year marks the 7th Run for Freedom and our 3rd as an in-person experience and attendance has exploded! This means that more people are learning about the reality of sex trafficking and the work being done to help survivors find safety, dignity, and a path forward. Every step is a reminder that freedom matters. That women & girls deserve to live outside of exploitation. That survivors deserve to be believed, supported, and given opportunities to rebuild their lives.

We run and walk because we can and because some can't.

We would love to have you join us for the 2026 Run for Freedom on October 11 at Penbrook Community Park. For more information, go to our Run for Freedom page!
