SEPTEMBER 2026

Welcome home, Lindsey Flanagan

Hello! My name is Lindsey Flanagan. If you've known Peace Promise for a while, you may have heard my name before. Here's a little reminder of my story & connection to Peace Promise.

In the early 2000s, God did a mighty work in me. As a result, I was healed and delivered from so much trauma. Childhood sexual abuse and fatherlessness had led me into my teenage years and young adult life searching for value in all the wrong places. An eating disorder, abusive relationships, promiscuity, abortion were all the result of desperately trying to fill a void within me that only our Abba Father could fill.

Shortly after I experienced that freedom and was restored to purity, I "happened" upon a Dateline special about the issue of trafficking. I wept for days. The burden of the Lord gripped my heart, and Peace Promise was born.

Thankfully, I had an amazing husband who had walked through his own healing journey, as well as friends who were obedient to the Lord's call and willing to run alongside me. We had an incredible church family and people all around us who continued to say yes. To those in that community who supported us through the years, thank you.

Though the Lord had begun this ministry through me, it belonged to Him. And a couple of years later, He began to call my family and me on a nomadic journey. Bryan and I often felt like Abraham and Sarah—though we did drag our five kids along the way.

We often didn't understand, but we obeyed.

The Lord told us that Peace Promise would stay where it was born. I had to walk away, trusting that God would move on the hearts of others to take the reins. And He did — thank goodness!

Never in a million years would I have imagined that His story for our lives would bring us full circle—not only back to Central Pennsylvania, but back to Peace Promise.

If you see me around Good Ground & Peace Promise events, I'll fill you in on more of the details.

For now, know that I am honored and humbled to be back!
